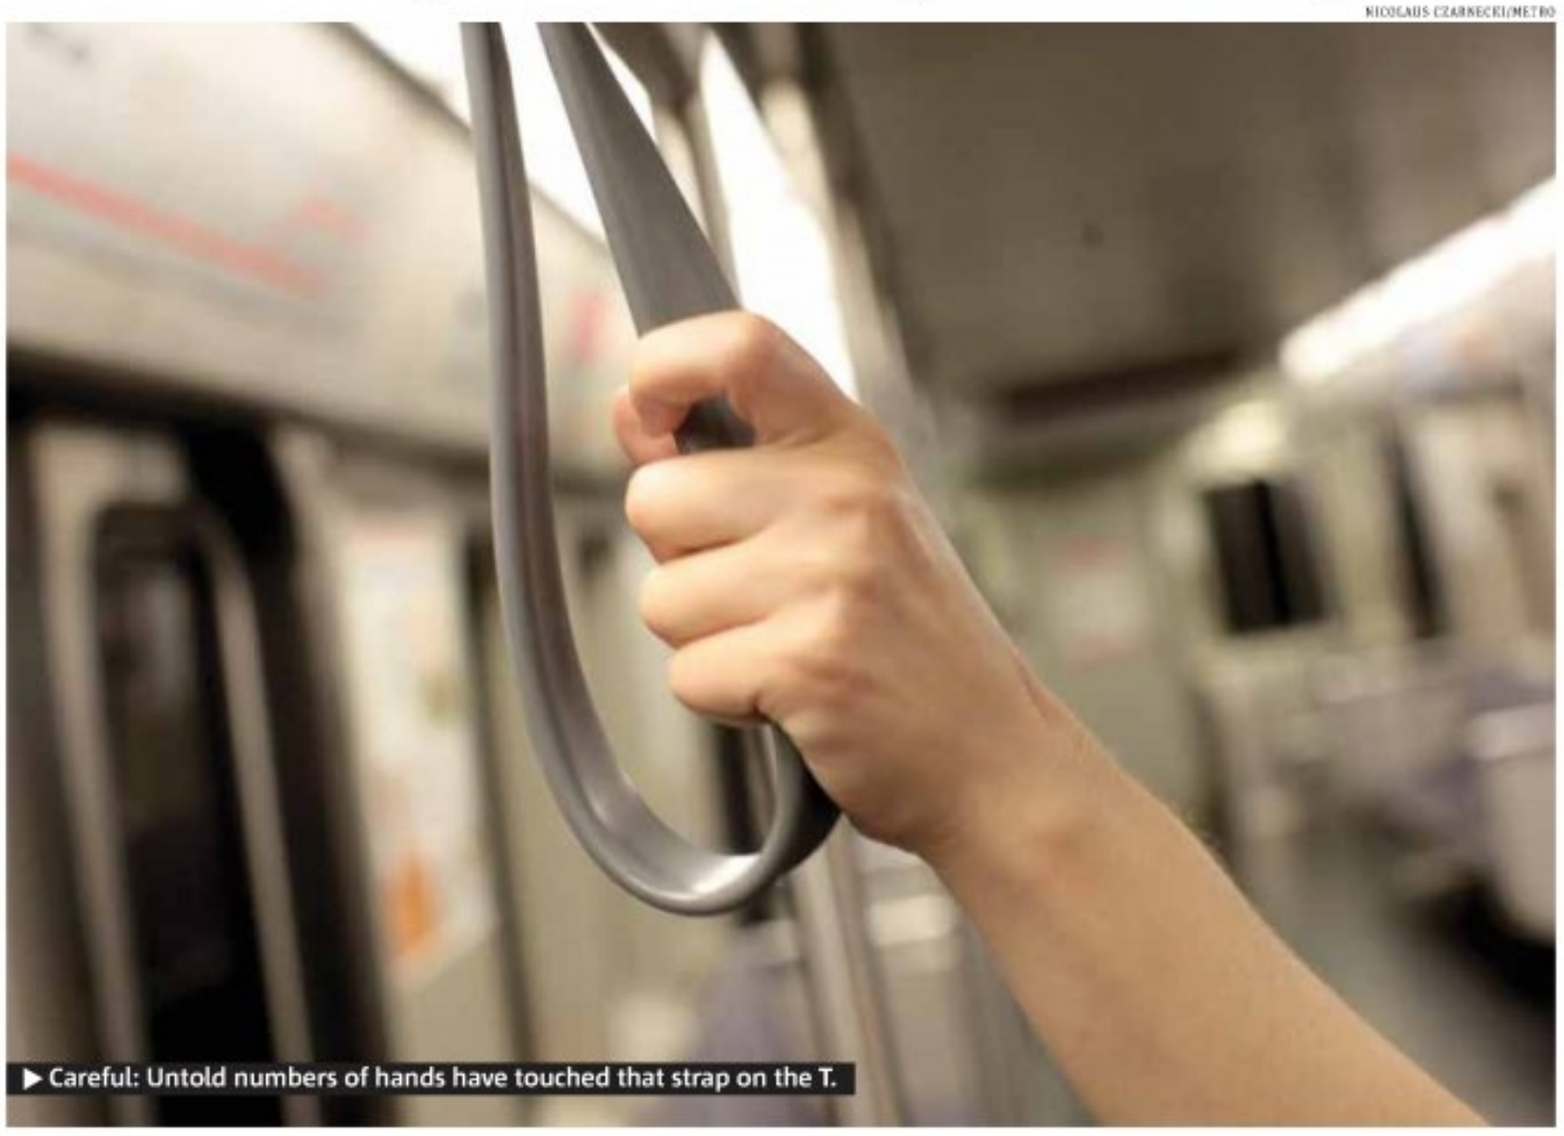
As rides go up, so do the germs

- Chances of catching cold, pinkeye or worse increase as more use the T
- Surfaces harbor spreadable viruses
- Experts advise washing hands

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI/METRO



▶ Careful: Untold numbers of hands have touched that strap on the T.

Ridership on the MBTA has peaked, hitting record highs in May with 1.2 million passenger trips per weekday.

That's up to 2.4 million hands touching T poles and straps every day.

And some of those hands are unwashed.

As the number of riders increases, so do the chances of contacting viruses and germs, experts say.

"In cramped conditions, [the T] is definitely a place where your risk of picking up a viral infection [goes up]," said Rachel Fearns, associate professor of microbiology at Boston University's School of Medicine.

Viruses like adenovirus, which can cause diarrhea, pinkeye and common cold symptoms, lurk on surfaces and transmit through touch.

Fearns said the high ridership, combined with passengers grabbing handrails and seat backs, makes getting it easier.

She said people also tend to touch their faces without realizing it, which helps spread viral infections — even in the summer.

According to Dr. Philip M. Tierno Jr., author of a book on germs and director of clinical microbiology at NYU, 80 percent of germs are transmitted by direct or indirect contact.

Tierno said indirect contact occurs when someone coughs in their hand or wipes their nose and then touches something.

"Germs are deposited and then other people touch that surface," he said. "Then they touch their eyes, mouth or nose, which are portals of entry into the body."

While the T has a daily routine of cleaning out all its vehicles, including interior scrub-downs, there is nothing they can do to enforce passenger handwashing.

How they clean

Buses
Cleaners do a thorough cleaning of interiors daily, and buses are swept and wiped down nightly, according to an MBTA spokesman.

Trains
Each vehicle gets an exterior cleaning once a month, with the exception of the Red Line. Each vehicle gets an interior cleaning Sunday through Thursday.

Devices not on their way

MBTA GM Rich Davey said that due to budget shortfall and fear of vandalism, the T hasn't installed hand-sanitizing devices.

Experts say it's up to passengers to wash their hands and not touch their face.

Boy, 12, arraigned in stabbing

A 12-year-old boy from Franklin was arraigned Monday on charges that he repeatedly stabbed his 9-year-old brother.

Police responded to the boy's home just before midnight Sunday for a report of the stabbing. A parent had already taken the 9-year-old to the hospital. It was unclear what condition he was in yesterday.

The 12-year-old allegedly stabbed his brother four times, according to the Milford Daily News.

It was unclear what caused the stabbing. METRO

Thousands of votes for train design

The selection was limited as far as the color scheme, but that didn't stop 14,000 MBTA customers from voting for their favorite locomotive design in a recent poll set up by the T.

One option was a clear winner, netting some 7,000 of the votes, according to MBTA spokesman Joe Pesaturo. The 20 locomotives represent a $114 million investment.

All three designs feature the classic purple color scheme. METRO/SA

MFA tries to keep some 'ice'

If you haven't had a chance to get to the Museum of Fine Arts to catch the Chihuly Glass exhibit, time is running out.

The display will be gone by Aug. 7.

But the MFA is doing its best to keep a piece of the art: It's trying to raise $1 million to retain the 42-foot-tall "Lime Green Icicle Tower," which is just what it sounds like. METRO/SA

43 The United States Postal Service is considering closing 43 offices in the state, the agency announced yesterday.

In the news

A bird? A plane? No, a chopper

City officials warned residents about military training exercises that started in and around Boston yesterday. They will last until Aug. 5. Helicopters will be used in some exercises, and police are working with the military to coordinate sites. METRO

Fast, cheap? Testing bike-sharing service

The race

Metro's unscientific experiment put Hubway up against a cab ride and a Green Line trip from Government Center to Kenmore Square. Hubway kiosks are set up at both locations.

With the city's bike-share set to launch, Metro tests cost, speed of Hubway 600 bikes hit city tomorrow

With 600 bicycles set to hit city streets tomorrow for the launch of the city's Hubway bicycle-sharing program, Metro wanted to test if the bikes could get users to their destination faster and cheaper.

Metro conducted an informal experiment to answer those questions yesterday afternoon by racing a Hubway bicycle between bike-share stations at Government Center and Kenmore Square against a cab and a Green Line ride.

Brogan Graham, marketing manager for Hubway's parent company, Alta Bicycle Share, peddled the bike from Tremont Street to Park Street and down Beacon Street. As the Metro reporter in the taxi was stopped at a red light coming off of Storrow Drive, he watched Graham pass by the intersection.

The bike won, beating the taxi by only a minute.

"In the last 10 years I've been here, I've seen Boston get much more bike-friendly."
BROGAN GRAHAM, MARKETING MANAGER FOR HUBWAY PARENT COMPANY ALTA BICYCLE SHARE

"We would do the ride from Mission Hill to Northeastern, and [we] would beat the Green Line all the time," Graham said.

The cab ride didn't work up a sweat, but it did cost more.

Although the T was the slowest, it was the cheapest. The bike-share was a close second, with a 24-hour rental costing $5. However, for users who pay the annual membership fee between $60 and $85, rides under 30 minutes will be free.

Couple killed as 4-year-old sleeps

Double murder in Hyde Park Crime was related to drugs, commish says Not random, no forced entry

The daughter of a retired Boston Police detective was fatally shot along with her boyfriend in their Hyde Park home early yesterday morning as her 4-year-old son slept in a nearby room.

Police responded to 957 Hyde Park Ave. just after 12:40 a.m. for a report of shots fired. When they arrived, they found the 24-year-old woman and her boyfriend, who was in his 30s, dead from gunshot wounds. They were pronounced dead at the scene.

Police Commissioner Ed Davis told the Globe that the murder was drug-related.

The woman, Billie Kee, was the daughter of retired detective William Kee, according to television reports.

From the shooting scene last night, Kee recalled how his daughter was born prematurely at Boston City Hospital.

"I remember as I worked as a detective out of headquarters I would go there and rock her in a chair. I can't believe that 24 years later, it's the end of my daughter's life," Kee said to NECN while at the scene.

Officers found the boy asleep and unharmed in the apartment.

Happy Meal gets apples, fewer fries

McDonald's Corp. said yesterday it will soon tweak its Happy Meals — reducing the french-fry portion by more than half and automatically adding apples to the popular children's meals — after coming under pressure from consumer groups to provide healthier fare.

McDonald's, which has been taking heat from parents, consumer groups and local lawmakers over the nutritional content and marketing of Happy Meals, said it would start making the changes in September. The new Happy Meals would be available in all of its 14,000 U.S. restaurants by the end of the first quarter of 2012.

The world's largest hamburger chain also plans a 15 percent reduction in sodium across its U.S. menu by 2015.

Poll: Voters blame Obama, GOP on jobs

WASHINGTON. More than a third of Americans believe President Barack Obama's policies have made the U.S. economy worse, but they blame Republicans just as much, according to a Washington Post-ABC News poll published yesterday.

The percentage of people who said Obama, a Democrat, has made the economy worse rose six points since October to 37 percent, the public opinion poll found.

But as many Americans blame Republicans in Congress for America's economic woes as they do Obama, the poll of more than 1,000 people found.

It said 65 percent of respondents said they disapprove of the Republicans' handling of jobs, compared with 52 percent who disapprove of Obama's efforts. REUTERS

Norway mass killer most likely insane, says defense lawyer

The lawyer of a Norwegian who killed at least 76 people in a bombing and a shooting spree said yesterday his client appeared to be a madman.

"This whole case indicated that he is insane," Geir Lippestad said of the 32-year-old Anders Behring Breivik, who has confessed to "atrocious but necessary" actions, but denies he is a criminal.

"He expects that this is the start of a war that will last 60 years," Lippestad said. "He has a view of reality that none of the rest of us share."

Lippestad, a member of the Labour Party whose youth wing was the target of shooting rampage on an idyllic island, said he would quit if Breivik did not agree to psychological tests. He says it's too early to say if Breivik would plead insanity at his trial.

Quoted

"He has no empathy, he is indifferent to the people he kills, he has no conscience and no remorse."

RAGNHILD BJOERNEBEKK, A RESEARCHER AT NORWAY'S POLICE SCHOOL, WHO SAID BREIVIK WAS DISCONNECTED FROM HIS VICTIMS

Yngve Ystad, a Norwegian forensic psychiatrist, said it was unlikely that Breivik would be found to be psychotic and thus unaccountable for his actions.

"He had planned the crime and he was not in that way disturbed by psychotic ... ideas because this has been going on for a very long time and, according to the press, he has not been disturbed or suffered severe disturbances." REUTERS

Beck riles for insensitivity

NEW YORK. Right wing commentator and political youth camp sponsor Glenn Beck has come under fire for comparing Norwegian mass murder victims with Nazis.

"There was a shooting at a political camp, which sounds a little like the Hitler Youth, or whatever," Beck said. "Who does a camp for kids that's all about politics? Disturbing."

Beck's 9/12 Project runs patriotic-style seminars across the nation. The Colorado chapter, for example, runs a "Constitutional Champions Summer Patriot Camp" for Republican youths. METRO

Not hunting attack bear

ANCHORAGE. Alaska wildlife managers have no plans to hunt down a bear that attacked a group of seven young backpackers over the weekend in a remote stretch of backcountry, a state biologist said.

The bear, believed to be a female with a cub nearby, probably acted to defend its young against a perceived threat when it attacked teenagers participating in a National Outdoor Leadership School expedition, said Lem Butler, a wildlife biologist with the Alaska Department of Fish and Game.

"The bear does not pose an immediate risk to public safety," he said. REUTERS

IMF warns of default

EUROPE. A default or significant credit downgrade in the United States would be a "very, very serious event," IMF chief Christine Lagarde said yesterday, warning it could have far-reaching consequences.

The International Monetary Fund's managing director also pressed Greece to quickly implement rescue measures and a privatization program to keep its economy afloat.

"The clock is really ticking. And people have to really find the appropriate solution," she said of U.S. deadlocked talks on raising the debt ceiling by an Aug. 2 deadline.

"Default would be terrible for the United States and for the economy at large," Lagarde told the Council on Foreign Relations. She called on the United States to develop a credible fiscal adjustment plan to address its public debt but cautioned that near-term budget cuts could undercut an already sluggish economy. REUTERS

BILL CLARK/ROLL CALL

▶ Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell remains firm on not raising any taxes. "That's just not going to happen," he said.

▶ US credit may be downgraded if politicians don't act ▶ No compromise in sight ▶ Another recession looms

President Barack Obama's Democrats and their Republican rivals were further apart than ever yesterday in an impasse over America's debt limit as Wall Street braced for a looming U.S. default and credit downgrade.

One week before a deadline to act, the two sides pursued competing budget plans that appeared to have little chance of winning broad congressional approval. There was no compromise in sight to raise the nation's $14.3 trillion debt ceiling by Aug. 2 to avert a default that could trigger global financial chaos.

With politicians in Washington starkly at odds, corporate America was growing increasingly nervous. Credit rating agencies have threatened to cut America's top-notch AAA bond rating if an increase in the debt limit is not accompanied by a plan for controlling long-term deficits.

"We just need a minimum amount of compromise, a minimum amount of not 'my way or the highway,' and we can get there this week."
GENE SPERLING, NATIONAL ECONOMIC COUNCIL HEAD

A default and downgrade could push the United States back into recession and send shock waves through global markets.

Wall Street banks are preparing for the real possibility that the United States will lose its top credit rating, which they say will cost the country $100 billion in additional interest payments and hurt both consumers and the economy.

"That's a negative for growth," Mike Hanson, senior U.S. economist at Bank of America Merrill Lynch, told reporters on a call organized by a Wall Street trade group, the Securities Industry and Financial Markets Association. REUTERS

Fielder-Civil 'devastated' for many reasons

Despite their messy split in 2009, Blake Fielder-Civil is "devastated and shattered" by the news of ex-wife Amy Winehouse's death, his current girlfriend, Sarah Aspin, tells the Sun. "I will never ever again feel the love I felt for her," Fielder-Civil reportedly told Aspin. "Everybody who knew me and knew Amy knew the depth of our love. I can't believe she's dead." Staff at the jail where Fielder-Civil is currently serving out a three-year sentence for burglary and firearm possession have been instructed to keep a closer eye on him. "He just can't take it in that she's dead and he'll never see her again," Aspin says.

Fielder-Civil, the man many blame for introducing Winehouse to hard drugs, might be shedding tears because he was left out of her will. The Daily Mail newspaper reports that Winehouse and her family made sure that Fielder-Civil was cut out of her $16 million fortune.

What's surprising isn't that Winehouse didn't leave anything for her ex, it's that she only had $16 million in the bank after the epic sales of the brilliant "Back to Black," which won three Grammy awards and spent 78 weeks on the charts. In comparison, Kim Kardashian has a net worth of around $35 million — for doing nothing. The world is an ugly place.

Instead, Constance Meester was allegedly using the $7,500 a month for cosmetic procedures and other personal expenses. "This whole thing's been really tough on Leighton," a source says. "Her only concern has always been taking care of her brother." The suit claims that Constance threatened to sue Leighton for $3 million if the actress didn't raise the monthly allowance to $10,000.

New divorce papers for Arnold

Arnold Schwarzenegger reportedly refiled divorce papers, with the new documents not blocking Maria Shriver's requests for spousal support and to have her attorney's fees covered, according to TMZ. Sources say Schwarzenegger signed the initial response without reading it, not realizing his lawyers had moved to block Shriver's requests.

Baker's deadliest weapons

The weapon

George Washington's Colichemarde

Time period it was used/people who used it: 1680 to 1820. This was George Washington's inaugural sword. It's one of the few combination swords that works well. It is a small sword, but works well in defense of heavier weapons. You have a wide section of blade near the handle where you can deflect a heavy weapon, but you can use the thin, sharp tip of the weapon for a longer-range thrust.
Level of difficulty to make: Extremely high. Grinding a blade that thin without ruining the temper of the blade is difficult.
Level of difficulty to wield: This sword should be used by an expert swordsman — it takes a lot of study to use. It's not a cutting sword, but a point-oriented sword.
Deadly factor: In the hands of the right person, very. It's an incredibly fast weapon with a long pedigree.

The weapon

Hernan Cortes' Spanish Halberd or Albarada

Time period it was used/people who used it: It's designed for multiple uses — the tip is used for holding people off and stabbing at a distance with the long point at the front; the axe edge is for cutting or hacking when you're fighting someone with armor; the hook on the back is used to pull people from their feet or down from horseback.
Level of difficulty to wield: It's a big weapon, so that's the major downfall — in confined spaces, you can hold someone off, but you can't do much more than that.
Deadly factor: Weapons like this have been used for hundreds of years — if it's lasted that long, it means it's pretty deadly and effective.

WWW.METRO.US/TV
FOR THE FULL PROFILE AND MORE WEAPONS

The weapon

Gurkha Kukri

Time period it was used/people who used it: Used by the Gurkhas; Second World War
Level of difficulty to make: I made it in traditional fashion — so it was pretty tough, because I needed it to be exactly right.
Level of difficulty to wield: This weapon isn't hard to use at all. It's a tool for getting up close and personal, and it's more of a cutting/slashing weapon as opposed to a stabbing weapon. Its design gives it a very powerful cut; the blade has a bit of a forward lean to it.
Deadly factor: Extremely, in the hands of the Gurkhas. In a famous battle in the Khyber Pass, the Gurkhas fought off the Afghans and British with only these knives, as they refused to use their gunpowder charges after they learned it was dipped in pig fat.

Drescher on being 'Happily Divorced'

The former 'Nanny' is back with a new series based on her own life How she rebuilt her relationship with her ex What dating was like

COURTESY OF TVLAND

▶ Fran Drescher stars in "Happily Divorced," airing Wednesdays at 10:30 p.m. on TVLand.

What would you do if you found out your husband of 21 years was gay? If you're Fran Drescher, you'd write a hit TV show about it.

That's exactly what Drescher, 53, did with "Happily Divorced," her new sitcom on TVLand, which was just picked up for a second season. On the show, after learning her ex-husband (John Michael Higgins) is gay, she gets a double whammy when she discovers that he can't afford to move out. The two must learn to co-exist together in their new relationship.

The idea for the show, Drescher says, was a no-brainer.

"TVLand [was] interested in having me pitch some ideas as a writer-producer, and the first thing they asked was, 'What would be an idea if you were to star in it?' And I said, 'Oh that's easy, it would have to be the relationship between me and my gay ex-husband. Now do you wanna hear the shows that I brought?' And they said, 'Why? We just bought that one.'"

At that point, Drescher says, she called her ex-hubby, Peter Marc Jacobson, and said she thought the two of them should write the show together. They had, in fact, already been working together on a movie called "Happily Divorced," inspired by a trip they took together to Paris when they were no longer married.

You might think that working with your ex would be a nightmare, but Drescher and Jacobson's relationship isn't vitriolic. She says her 2000 diagnosis with uterine cancer allowed the two of them to work on their friendship.

"It has been at least 10 years, and I think one of the silver linings of my cancer survival was that it brought us closer together again," she says. "We had been working toward reinventing our relationship. I think that it takes as much work to be happily divorced as it does to be happily married. Maybe you shouldn't throw the baby out with the bathwater. Reinvent the relationship and see where you were supposed to be."

Dating after a divorce

Drescher says that entering the dating scene again was "a huge transition," as she met Jacobson at age 15.

"Part of the problem with the marriage is that I didn't really know myself outside my relationship with him, and so when I first started dating, it was really a learning process. I was with this really gorgeous guy but he wasn't a great kisser, and I really didn't know to get rid of him. I didn't have the experience and I'm thinking, 'Should I just get it over with?' And then I'm thinking, 'No, I don't have to do anything I don't wanna do.' And suddenly I just blurted out, 'This is not going to happen and you have to go.' And that was beginning of me really finding myself. It's been quite a journey. And now I'm amazed at the person I've grown into. Life is a journey of growing and taking what's offered to you as an opportunity to learn and grow some more — even especially bad things."

EXOTIC DANCERS

FORMERLY OR CURRENTLY EMPLOYED AT
ADULT ENTERTAINMENT CLUBS IN MASSACHUSETTS

This office has investigated and filed class action lawsuits against various adult entertainment clubs in Massachusetts on behalf of current & former exotic dancers working at these clubs. Our lawsuits claim that various adult entertainment clubs require exotic dancers to pay a "house fee" to work and share their tips and earnings with other workers in violation of the Massachusetts tip statute. Our lawsuits also claim that various clubs have misclassified their dancers as "independent contractors", failed to pay minimum wage and provide other benefits as required under Massachusetts Law. Current and former dancers at adult entertainment clubs may be eligible to participate in these class action lawsuits and may be entitled to substantial compensation. For more information contact:

With 'A Little Help' from her life

GETTY IMAGES

Jenna Fischer stars in "A Little Help."

Jenna Fischer drew on her own experience to play floundering widow in her new movie She knows who will replace Michael on 'The Office'

Jenna Fischer knows about personal shake-ups. To play the Long Island mom whose already rocky life is thrown off-course by the death of her husband (Chris O'Donnell), in "A Little Help," the "Office" star drew on experience.

"I had kind of gone through a really big, life-altering event myself shortly before I agreed to do this movie, which is that I got divorced after having been married almost eight years," she explains. "I kind of drew on my own experience of feeling lost and not knowing who I was. I remember moving into my own place, then, after having lived with someone for eight years, and being like, 'Oh, I'm the only person who has to like these plates. Just me. I don't have to compromise in any way.' It was so weird. You're so used to sharing. And so you feel a little lost when it's just you, at first."

Beginner's luck

Fischer admits she felt a bit lost taking the lead in a film for the first time.

"As the lead of a movie, you really set the tone off-camera as well. And that's a really big responsibility, and I'd never had that responsibility before," she says. "It was a movie of being in the driver's seat, and that was new for me — a different kind of exhausting."

After filming "A Little Help," Fischer could at least turn to "The Office" star Steve Carell for commiseration. "When I got done with this movie, I went in to work after the summer, and I said, 'Steve, I have a newfound respect for what you do,'" she says.

Of course, this year will be different, as Carell clocked out for the last time on "The Office" toward the end of last season. And while James Spader will join the show's cast — taking over for Kathy Bates as the parent company Sabre's CEO — exactly who will be taking over for Carell as regional manager of Dunder-Mifflin is a mystery. But not to Fischer. "I'm not allowed to say, but I know who the manager is," she teases. "They haven't revealed it yet, but it's a great choice. ... We're kind of being forced to shake things up, which is a nice thing. We won't be repeating ourselves."

That's not completely true, though, as Fischer's Pam will be expecting once again: The actress's own pregnancy is being worked into the show's plot. "Pam will be pregnant," she confirms. "If you remember, Pam and Jim had sex in the office on Valentine's Day, and it turns out they conceived a child. They apparently are very good at getting pregnant on accident."

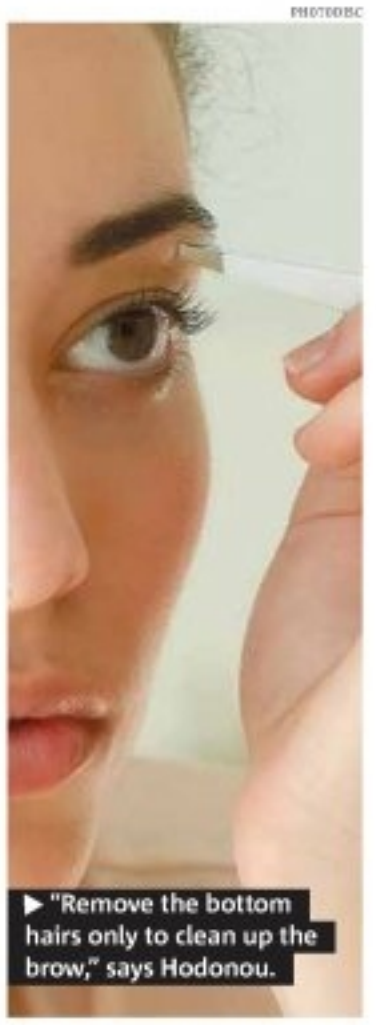
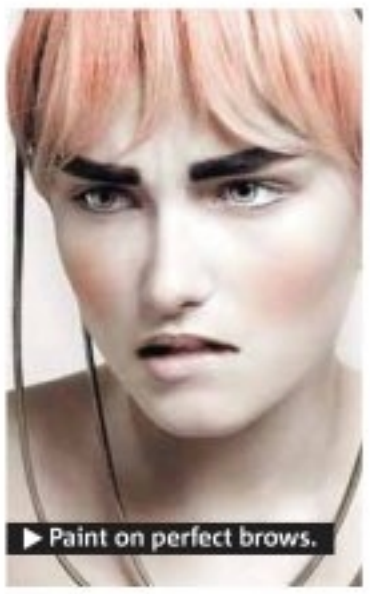
Tips for building a bigger, bolder brow

The bushy eyebrow is the trendiest it's been since Brooke Shields rocked Calvins ◗ Celebrity makeup artist Serge Hodonou explains how to create the look at home ◗ 'You need to create proportion,' he tells us



▶ "Remove the bottom hairs only to clean up the brow," says Hodonou.

Whether you want Kate Middleton's regal arches or the wild, wolf-like gaze of model Natalia Vodianova, the first step is to stop over-plucking and let your eyebrows grow. Paris-based makeup artist Serge Hodonou, whose clients include Bjork and Freida Pinto, talks us through the next steps.



▶ Paint on perfect brows.

Identify your face shape: "You need to create proportion," Hodonou says. "On a long, angular face, a curved brow will add roundness and softness. On a more rounded face, straight brows will create a more angular, defined structure."

Choose the right color: "Stick to shades of brown and stay clear of black, as this will bring harshness to the face, even on natural brunettes," he says. "Blondes should go for a shade just a little darker than their natural color, such as light brown."

Create your shape: "Thickly draw in the shape you want with an eyebrow pencil or some loose powder. I don't use a liquid eyeliner pen because it doesn't look natural. Apply a lot of color on the top half of the eyebrow (not under), as this will help lengthen and widen your gaze. Once you reach the tip of the eyebrow, never go too low, as this will drag the eye down."

Tap it out: "Aim for natural, not drag queen. Tap and brush the color using your fingers and then use a Q-tip to remove any excess. Use the Q-tip to blend in the color and avoid graphic straight lines that look fake," he says.

GET OUT & HAVE FUN IN THE SUN!

Summer won't last forever. A popular annual (actually biannual) favorite on the August calendar is Restaurant Week Boston, when more than 200 neighborhood spots and chef-driven restaurants feature special summer menus at very special prices. To locate participating restaurants, read menus and make reservations, visit BostonUSA.com — it's also available on your smartphone. These two weeks are just quite possibly the best two of the summer!

The Waterfront Performing Arts Series entertains on Tuesday evenings from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at Christopher Columbus Park. Other free entertainment options include The Institute of Contemporary Art and the Concord Museum on Aug. 5, the JFK Library & Museum and Stone Zoo, Aug. 12, the Boston Harbor Islands, Aug. 19 and Old Sturbridge Village on Aug. 26. And don't forget the open-air treat, Shakespeare's comedy, "All's Well That Ends Well" on Boston Common through Aug. 13.

Outdoor festivals continue to amuse. The Fisherman's Feast, the oldest Italian Festival in the North End kicks off on Aug. 11. Enjoy the entertainment at the bandstand while sampling an array of Italian food. The four-day Feast culminates on Sunday with the "Flight of the Angel." Aug. 14 also brings India Day on the Esplanade, the Dominican Festival at Franklin Park and the August Moon Festival at the Chinatown Park on the Greenway. Bands and colorful masqueraders take to the streets for the Caribbean Carnival & Parade on Saturday, Aug. 23.

The North End beckons again on Aug. 26 through 28 for the Feast of Saint Anthony.

It's easy to be green at the Boston GreenFest 2011 with over 200 exhibitors, 80 live performances, demonstrations, eco-friendly cafes, fashions, art and crafts — all on City Hall Plaza for three green days of beginning Aug. 18 when the Plaza lights up with fireworks and laser shows, using only one 100-watt plug!

I encourage you to test the waters — the Charles River and Boston Harbor. Canoe, kayak or paddle board the Charles. Set sail in the Harbor on a 125-foot-tall ship. What about a sunset cruise up the Charles or a skyline cruise along Boston's waterfront? Tailgating takes on a new meaning when you head out to Stellwagen Bank for some whale-watching. Perhaps you'd like to dine at sea? You can choose from dinner, lunch and brunch cruises. And then there's Codzilla, a ride you will not forget! For a "one if by land, two if by sea" adventure, board a duck and swim the city streets before plunging into the waters. For another land and water experience, ferry to the Boston Harbor Islands for hiking, beaches, tours, camping, kayaking, nature walks and historic sites — or just to relish a whole new view of Boston.

Hot summer health questions answered

We call on Dr. Joshua M. Kosowsky for solutions to warm-weather ailments Protect your ears and eyes from water, and your skin from heat

▶ If you spend a lot of time underwater, get yourself a pair of goggles.

POLKA DOT

Why do mosquitoes pick and choose their victims? Troubled by swimmer's ear? Metro asked Dr. Joshua M. Kosowsky, clinical director at Boston's Brigham and Women's Hospital's ER, about common summer health problems.

Why do mosquitoes bite certain people and not others?
No one really knows. Scientists have suggested that mosquitoes are attracted to higher body temperatures, higher levels of carbon dioxide in the breath or even certain blood types.

What exactly is swimmer's ear, and what can people do to prevent it?
Swimmer's ear is inflammation of the outer ear, caused by water getting trapped in the ear canal. You can usually keep this from happening by turning your head from side to side until any sense of fullness or hearing impairment is gone. It is especially important to not put anything (like a Q-tip) into the ear canal itself, because this can damage the lining of the ear canal and cause more inflammation.

Can swimming with your eyes open underwater, especially in a chlorinated pool, cause damage?
Prolonged exposure to any kind of water will have the effect of drying out your eyes, which is irritating. If your eyes become irritated after swimming, rinse with cold water and use eyedrops to keep them moist. There's no long-term eye damage from swimming occasionally with your eyes open. Still, if you are swimming regularly, it's a good idea to use swim goggles.

Q&A

What's the best thing to put on sunburned skin?

▶ There are no topical agents that have been shown to speed recovery, but aloe vera can help with sunburn symptoms. Cool soaks with Burow's solution (available in drugstores), or with equal parts milk and water, can provide temporary relief.

Did you know...your relationship could affect your health?

In fact, relationships featuring abuse and violence are associated with many negative health efects, so much so that preventing relationship violence is an objective of the nationwide Healthy People 2020 initiative.[1]

Domestic violence (DV) refers to a pattern of abuse committed by one's partner, spouse, boyfriend /girlfriend, or significant other. The abuse may include physical, emotional, or sexual violence as well as attempts to control and isolate the victim. Domestic violence is unfortunately all too common: studies have found that approximately 1 in 4 women and 1 in 13 men experience domestic violence in their lifetime.[2] Although most DV victims are women, abuse can happen to anyone regardless of age, gender, or sexual orientation.[2,3] No one deserves to be hurt... by anyone.

It is important to recognize that your relationship can impact your mind and body, both in the short and long-term. Negative health effects of abuse can include:[4,5]

- Injuries stemming from the abuse (such as broken bones, bruises, and cuts)
- Stomach problems
- Pelvic pain and gynecological issues such as urinary tract infections (UTIs)
- Sexually Transmitted Diseases /Infections, including HIV
- Chronic pain, migraines, asthma and arthritis
- Forced, unplanned, or unwanted pregnancy or abortion
- Miscarriage and other serious problems if a woman is abused during pregnancy
- Psychological or emotional problems such as depression, anxiety, post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), eating, and sleep disorders

Abuse can also impact your ability to get the care you need, pay for medical expenses, and make other important decisions that affect your health and that of your family. If you are being abused or are not feeling safe at home, you are not alone, and it is not your fault. There are many local resources that can help you. If you are in immediate danger, dial 911. New center for robotic surgery helps women with gynecological disorders

At Brigham and Women's Center for Robotic Surgery at Faulkner Hospital, gynecologists are using cutting edge technology to treat and care for many gynecological conditions using state-of-the-art robotics to improve reproductive surgery outcomes.

At Brigham and Women's Center for Robotic Surgery at Faulkner Hospital, physicians use the da Vinci Surgical System to perform a wide variety of gynecological procedures including:

- Hysterectomies (benign or cancer)
- Myomectomy (removing fibroids but preserving the uterus)
- Tubal Reversals (after prior tubal ligation)
- Endometriosis
- Ovarian cysts and masses

Under the direction of Dr. James Greenberg, the Center is led by Dr. Antonio Gargiulo and Dr. Serene Srouji who are pioneers in the field of gynecological robotic surgery, having performed New England's first successful robot-assisted laparoscopic tubal sterilization reversal, as well as Boston's first robot-assisted hybrid myomectomy for the removal of very large myomata. They have since continued this accomplished partnership to perform more than 350 robot-assisted surgeries.

"Traditional open surgery requires one large incision and retraction to accommodate human hands, but only small incisions are required for the robot's hands," states Dr. Gargiulo. In fact, these hands are attached to four arms - one guides a high definition 3-D camera, two act as the surgeon's main arms, and an optional arm is often used for holding back tissue. The movements of the robot are always guided by a doctor, never programmed.

This miniaturization, increased range of motion, enhanced vision, and mechanical precision ultimately allow for virtually all reproductive surgeries to be performed laparoscopically, translating into added benefits for the patient, such as:

- Less blood loss
- Less post-surgical pain /less medication
- Quicker recovery and return to normal activities
- Less scarring
- Less likelihood of complications

"Many of our patients are still in their child-bearing years," states Dr. Srouji. "Of all the gynecological procedures performed today, the precision of robotic surgery allows us more opportunities to effectively preserve the fertility of our patients."

If you have any of the symptoms described above, call us at 617-983-7500 to schedule a consultation.

Presbyopia Correcting IOLs (Multifocal IOLs)

Presbyopia is a condition that most people over the age of 40 experience that results in difficulty seeing up close without the aid of bifocals, trifocals, or reading glasses. The age-related condition is believed to be caused by a hardening of the lens inside the eye, making it difficult for the eye's muscles to change its focus.

Over time, the lens becomes cloudy and develops into a cataract. It is said that, if we live long enough, we will all develop cataracts. The only way to treat cataracts is to remove and replace them with an Intraocular Lens (IOL).

Until recently, the primary option was to receive a "fixed focus" IOL. Patients who received this type of IOL typically had both eyes corrected for distance vision but usually still required glasses for intermediate and near vision.

If you are experiencing presbyopia or cataracts, you may be a candidate for one of the new technologically advanced IOLs that can provide a full range of vision. This means that you can read and see clearly in the distance and everything in-between, with little or no dependence on bifocals, trifocals, or contact lenses. It's almost like having a bifocal or progressive lens inside your eye.

Depending on the technological features of these IOLs, they may be described as "Accommodating IOLs", "Apodized-diffractive IOLs", or "Multifocal IOLs". Each of these lenses has some advantages and disadvantages. Which one is best for you depends on the unique characteristics of your eye as well as your lifestyle needs. You and your doctor will decide together which lens is more advantageous for you. New England Eye Center offers many premium lens options including Crystalens, ReStor, Toric and others.

The vast majority of patients who chose a Multifocal lens report they can read a book, work on a computer, drive a car – day and night – and play golf or tennis with an increased freedom from glasses. Multifocal lens surgery can address cataracts, presbyopia and astigmatism.

Intraocular Lens for Astigmatism

Advances in Intraocular Lens (IOL) technology now provide a reliable and effective option for patients with astigmatism. Until the recent introduction of Toric IOLs, people who are considered candidates for intraocular lenses could only have their nearsightedness and farsightedness corrected during lens implant surgery. Patients with astigmatism would either require corneal refractive surgery (LASIK, PRK, or LRI) after lens implant surgery or the would remain dependant on glasses or contacts due to uncorrected astigmatism.

Astigmatism is caused by the cornea being more curved in one direction than the other, much like a football. Toric IOLs are specially shaped IOLs designed to offset the imbalance created by the irregular shape of the cornea. Once implanted and aligned inside the eye, they stay fixed in place, thereby eliminating pre-existing astigmatism.

U.S. News names top cancer hospital in New England

Dana-Farber/Brigham and Women's Cancer Center #1 in New England and #5 in the nation

U.S. News & World Report's Best Hospitals guide has ranked Dana-Farber/Brigham and Women's Cancer Center the top cancer center in New England and fifth overall in the country. The rankings, now available online at http://health.usnews.com/best-hospitals/rankings/cancer/data, will be published in the magazine's 2011-2012 Best Hospitals guide on Aug. 30.

"This recognition by U.S. News & World Report reflects the strength of our collaboration with Brigham and Women's, built upon the commitment, compassion, and experience of our collective caregivers and staff," says Edward J. Benz, Jr. MD, president of Dana-Farber. "We work together every day to provide the best possible care for our patients."

"The U.S. News ranking reflects the tremendous dedication that the Brigham and Dana-Farber demonstrate every day to care for our cancer patients in the best possible way," says Elizabeth G. Nabel, MD, president of Brigham and Women's.

In addition U.S. News & World Report ranked Dana-Farber/Children's Hospital Cancer Center the top pediatric cancer hospital in the country this past May.

U.S. News & World Report publishes the hospital guide each year as a reference for patients who are reviewing their medical care options. RTI International, Research Triangle Park, NC, compiled all hospital data and generated the 2011-2012 rankings. In addition to cancer, the guide ranks medical facilities in 15 other specialties. The overall score is based on professional reputation, mortality rates, patient safety, and a grouping of care-related factors such as nursing and patient services.

Not a game, Mr. President

Dear Mr. President: You do not know me or the other 7 million people who live on social security, disability and veterans checks. You say you can't guarantee our August checks. Quit playing chicken with the American people.
JACOB J. TAYLOR, EAST BOSTON

Hypocrisy in our midst

I do not appreciate how businesses are trying to gain profit off of same-sex couples. All I see are advertisements for LGBT honeymoons, wedding items, cards, etc. Where was the support before?
DIANE BITLER, VIA E-MAIL

The holy rollers opposed to gay marriage have filed a lawsuit to "Prop 8" New York's new law. How do these people justify the money they will need to spend on their latest attempt to crush civil rights of others?
ROBERT C. YUKNAVECH, VIA E-MAIL

According to the Bible, "God" doesn't want gay marriage. I find that interesting because "God" also doesn't want people to steal, cheat or kill — yet every news story I've read this weekend has had religious people doing exactly those things.
NICK LEDESMA, VIA E-MAIL

Believe what you want

RE: "WHY ARE MY VIEWS SO SMALL?": Everyone is entitled to their opinions and how they want to live their lives. Believe in what you want, just don't meddle in my business.
MARC BATISTA, VIA E-MAIL

You're comparing commitment to sex, and they are two different things. Marriage does not mean "procreation." You can have kids outside of marriage, and married couples can choose not to procreate.
TIM MALLOY, DORCHESTER

RE: "SOME BACKLASH FROM THE RIGHT": In regard to the Metro being a Marxist or a Democratic Party rag, Metro puts a few Democratic views in one day and a few Republican views in the next.

The joke's on all of us

I find it hilarious that W. Bush tricked the entire country into forming "Homeland Security" and Republicans complain about "big government."

Mankins to sign tender, report on time

One of the Patriots' biggest potential roster problems will be no trouble at all.

All-Pro guard Logan Mankins will sign his franchise tender and report to training camp on time, ESPN's Adam Schefter reported yesterday.

Mankins, 29, held out until November last year after negotiations on a long-term contract stalled. He eventually signed a prorated $1.54 million restricted free agent tender.

This year's franchise tender is worth around $10 million. He and the team have until Sept. 20 to work on an extension.

"Early this morning, Logan spoke with [coach] Bill [Belichick] and both are very happy, happy to get started," Mankins' agent, Frank Bauer, told ESPN. "Logan is looking forward to being with his teammates and coaches with a fresh start."

It's a far cry from last season, when Mankins demanded a trade after contract talks broke down.

After missing seven games, though, he still managed to post his second All-Pro campaign. METRO

History suggests another fine year

At 34, Brady isn't getting any younger • But that's a long way from too old for quarterbacks • Here's how some other top performers fared then

Next week doesn't just mark the continuation of the Patriots' preseason. It will also mark the day Tom Brady celebrates his 34th birthday.

Relax, relax.

Brady doesn't age like the average human being. After all, he won the MVP last season — and there's no reason to believe he can't do it again. Still, though, age has a way of creeping up on players.

So how did some Hall of Fame QBs fare in their age 34 seasons? We gathered up some season totals, and used a stat called passer rating index, or "Rate+," where 100 represents the league average for that particular season and higher is better.

The verdict? Thirty-four is definitely not too old.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Tom Brady isn't as young as he used to be. That's no reason to think he isn't as good.

▶ Joe Montana

Nobody draws more Montana comparisons than Brady. At 34, Montana led the 49ers to a 14-1 record, throwing for 3,944 yards while ending up with a 118 Rate+. He was knocked out of the NFC Championship game, missed the next two seasons with injuries and was eventually replaced by Steve Young.

Montana later had a pair of above-average seasons in Kansas City.

▶ Steve Young

Young completed a league-high 67 percent of his pass attempts for 291 yards per game at 34. He threw 20 touchdowns and 11 interceptions and ended the season with a Rate+ of 120. Young was a top QB through the age of 37.

▶ Johnny Unitas

Unitas had his last solid season at age 34, throwing for 3,428 yards and 20 touchdowns.

His Rate+ that year was 116 — it was his last time above 100 as a consistent starter. He did, however, win a Super Bowl at the age of 37.

▶ Troy Aikman

Aikman's career didn't make it past 34. He threw seven TDs and 14 interceptions in 11 games, and his Rate+ sagged to 81 from 104 the previous year.

Former Boston College standout and cancer survivor Mark Herzlich has signed with the New York Giants as an undrafted free agent.

Patriots to cut LB

The Patriots will release outside linebacker Tully Banta-Cain this week, according to online reports yesterday.

Banta-Cain, who had five sacks last year, was expected to be a key piece of the defensive puzzle. But abdominal surgery last week made him expendable.

New England, meanwhile, is left extremely thin at OLB. METRO

Ranking Sox's trade targets

It'd be nice for Boston to land Jimenez or Beltran ◗ But don't hold your breath ◗ There are in-house options, and the asking prices are high ◗ Some lesser-known players, though, could be had ◗ Breslow would be cheap

The trade deadline is only a few days away. But as of press time last night, things on that front had been quiet on Yawkey Way — and across the big leagues.

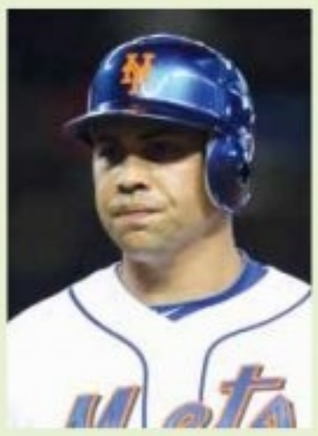
The Red Sox, who went into last night's game against the Royals with a two-game lead in the AL East, hadn't yet made a notable move. And it's possible they won't.

But they have been linked with several big-name targets. Here's a breakdown. METRO

On the air tonight

Red Sox vs. Royals
7:10 p.m., NESN, WEEI

Ubaldo Jimenez
Odds it happens: 100-1
The Rockies have made their young, cheap ace available, which is surprising. He'd be a great add for the Sox, but the asking price is far too steep.



Carlos Beltran
Odds it happens: 75-1
Beltran, who's having his best year since 2008, would easily replace J.D. Drew. But why pay when Josh Reddick can give solid production?

Erik Bedard
Odds it happens: 25-1
Bedard, who comes off the DL Friday, is the dark horse on the pitching market. He won't cost as much as Jimenez and could do just as much in 2011.

Jeff Francoeur
Odds it happens: 15-1
"Frenchy" is a low-rent Beltran; he'd offer an OK right-handed bat off the bench. But again, the emergence of Reddick is the hurdle.

Craig Breslow
Odds it happens: 10-1
Why not? The reliever, a Connecticut native who pitched for the Sox in 2006, wouldn't cost very much at all and would add a valuable lefty arm to the pen.

Breakers on verge of a record streak

The Boston Breakers have never gone six consecutive games without a loss.

They can change that tonight.

Boston (4-5-4 overall, 2-0-3 in its last five) can break the team record for games without a loss with a solid result against the Philadelphia Independence tonight (7 p.m., Harvard Stadium).

Defenders Rachel Buehler, Amy LePeilbet and Stephanie Cox should see their first time since the Women's World Cup.

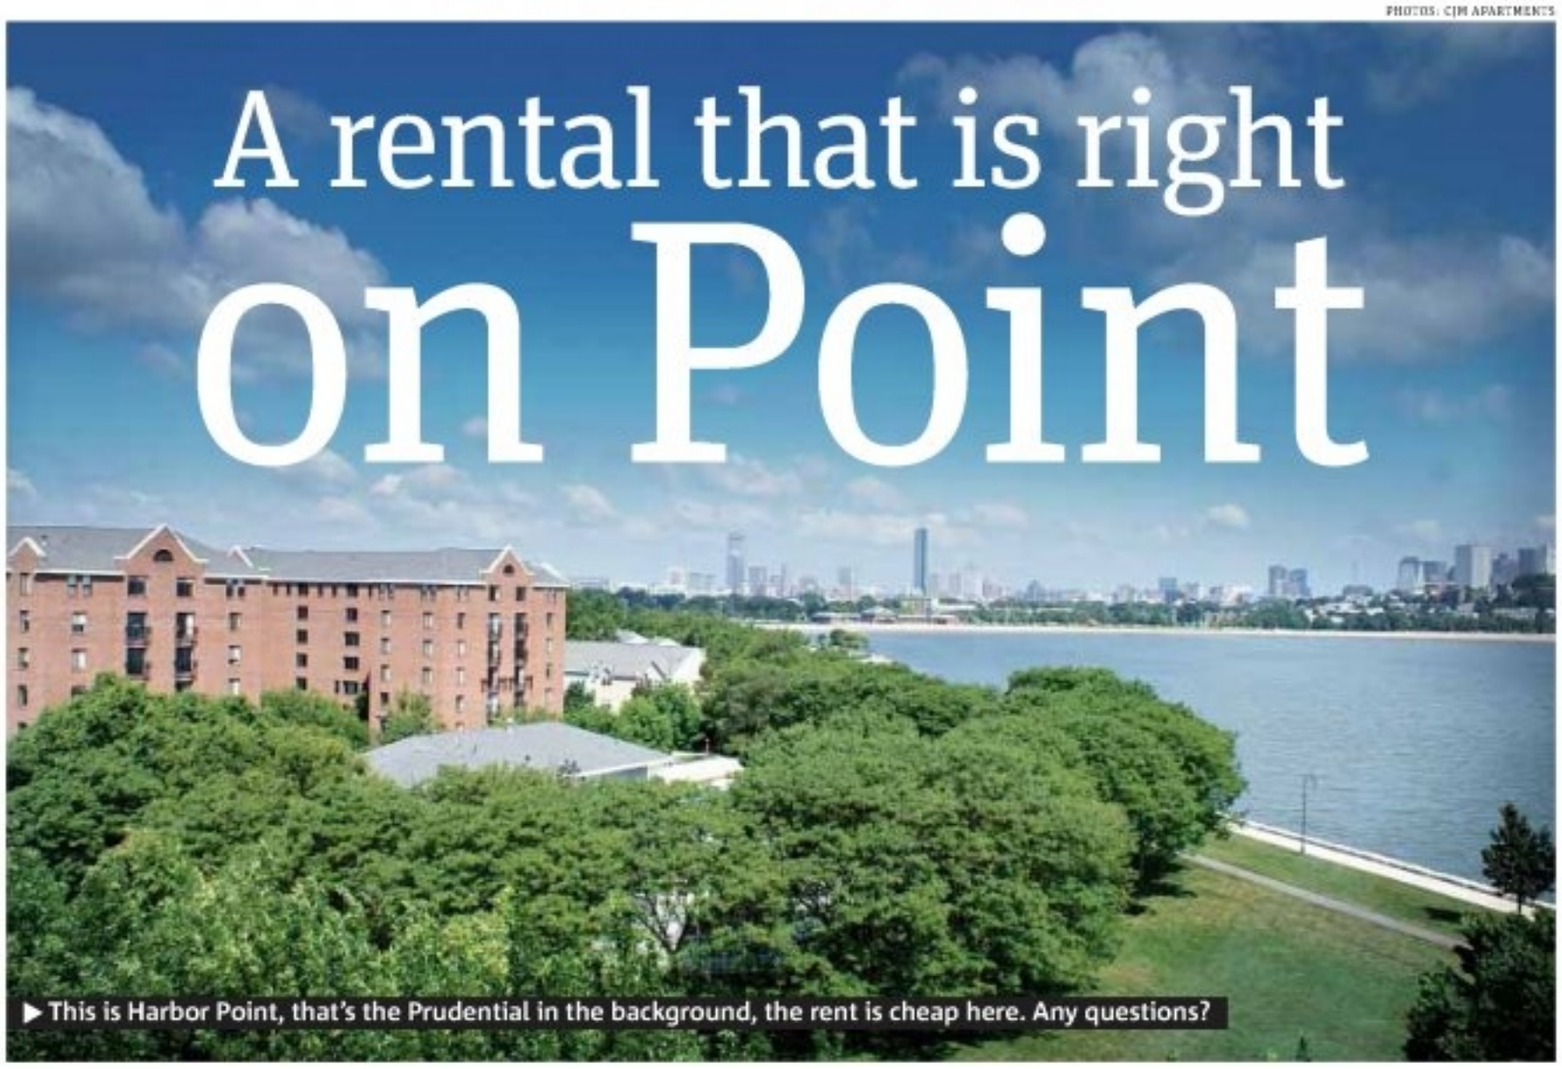
Harbor Point on the Bay doesn't just overlook the water, it practically sits on it

A rental that is right on Point

PHOTOS: CJM APARTMENTS



▶ This is Harbor Point, that's the Prudential in the background, the rent is cheap here. Any questions?

The details

Pricing:

- One-bed/one-bath apartments, about 700 square feet, are $1,435.
- Townhouses with three beds and two baths, approximately 1,350 square feet, are around $2,600.
- Rent includes heat, AC and parking. In-unit electricity and cable are extra. Harbor Point on the Bay, 24 Oyster Bay Rd., Boston.
- For more info: www.harborpointonthebay.com

There is a certain amount of natural ease about Harbor Point on the Bay. This purpose-built 1,300-unit apartment and townhouse complex overlooks Dorchester Bay and the Harbor Islands. Actually, it doesn't just overlook the water; it practically sits on it.

"We have two swimming pools, and you are basically looking at the bay while you are swimming," says leasing director Justin Holstrom. Sounds idyllic. "It's incredible," he agrees. Before he moved to his own place on the South Shore, Holstrom lived on site and Harbor Point was his home.

But it's not just living by the water in summer that makes this property appealing. Easy access to the city means less of a schlep throughout the year.

"It's about three miles to Haymarket, and we're right on the Red Line," adds Holstrom. "Also, our residents like the spacious apartments — that's a big part of the appeal, too."

Amenities include a clubhouse, a tennis court and two fitness rooms — one Nautilus-dedicated and the other cardio-oriented. Both have water views. For runners and walkers, the Harborwalk winds past the building, and Carson Beach and Castle Island are just a few minutes walk away.

"Another added bonus is having the green space right by the building. There's not many apartment buildings this close to the city that have that," says Holstrom.

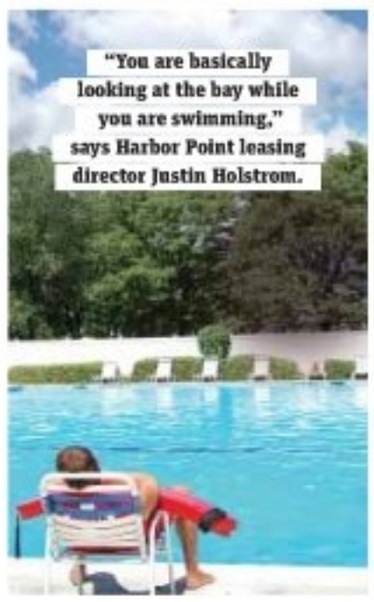
LINDA LABAN
linda.laban@metro.us

Is there a downside to Harbor Point?

"Not that I can think of," says Holstrom.

Perhaps there's one: the summer leasing rush.

"We had about a hundred empty at the start of summer, and they are going quick. We're usually 97 percent occupied year-round."



"You are basically looking at the bay while you are swimming," says Harbor Point leasing director Justin Holstrom.

Affordable vacation rental just a click away

- Smarter surfers of the Web are finding unexpected deals online
- Yes, you could stay in a place like the one pictured here for cheap

When Katie Molloy decided to take a vacation to Cape Cod this summer, she knew a hotel room for seven days would break the bank for her family of four.

Instead, she turned to a popular vacation website, Homeaway.com, which allows users to browse through hundreds of thousands of rental properties and contact owners directly, without using brokers or pricey hotels.

"The site is just a starting point, and then all communication is between you and the owner," says Molloy, who found a reasonable cottage rental in Falmouth for a week in August. "I like searching a website, because I can do it for a few minutes here and there and not commit to time on the phone with a broker."

HOMEAWAY.COM

▶ This Chatham home is listed on Homeaway.com for rental. The price is $3,200 to $4,000 per week.

Websites like Homeaway.com are seeing a large increase in users with more people choosing to avoid expensive hotels or rent their homes to make money.

Currently, there are more than 225,000 vacation rentals to choose from on Homeaway.com. According to Victor Wang, a spokesman for the site, the number of homes available for rent in the Boston area in the past three months is up 38 percent compared to the same time period last year.

There are also sites for swapping homes, where you can score free lodging while someone else enjoys your home at the same time.

For Molloy, having a kitchen, living room and two bedrooms on vacation is a must with two toddlers — and finding it without a logistical nightmare is a big plus.

"The nice thing about a cottage is that we can put the kids to bed and then hang out in the living room," says Molloy. "In a hotel, I guess we'd watch the TV on mute from our bed next to theirs. That's not so fun."

REAL ESTATE ON THE GO!

MAKING REAL ESTATE WORK FOR YOU

By Attorney George Warshaw

If you've read this column over the past several weeks, you may have noticed a continuing theme: making real estate work for you!

Too many people have become burdened with their homes in this economic downturn. They've become slaves to real estate and a mortgage that they can't easily repay or refinance because of reduced home values.

One thing I've learned from my overseas clients is how differently they view real estate. They seem less concerned with saving a few dollars on the purchase price and more focused on the revenue and the monthly costs to operate the property; i.e. the monthly cash flow or cash requirements.

The lesson of this economy is treat every real estate decision – including your home– as an investment. What are the monthly cash requirements? In deciding to purchase a condo or house, plan the finances and make sensible, not emotional decisions. In renovating, compare the increase in value or marketability to the cost.

It's easy to fall in love with real estate; it's just that real estate may not always love you in return.

If you missed my last few columns on Getting Older, Home Equity Loans, or Renting Your Condo, please read them at www.georgeinthemetro.com.
